I can remember smelling the winter come smelling the winter come but now everything melts away

I can remember watching the river flow flowin' like tears in the snow but now everything turns to gold

I can remember chasing a ray of light out in the moonlit night in a lucid dream I awake

I can remember smelling the winter come
smelling the winter come I can remember all the trees appears so green everything is warm and bright

My mind is wavin' over an endless sea over the hills and trees like a warm embrace of the sun

I see familiar faces surrounding me suddenly, you I see and I found your heart in the light

I can remember smelling the winter come
smelling the winter come I can remember all the trees appear so green everything is warm and bright
